Hi,

do you think cloud hosting would be good alternative to GH/BB ? If so why, we would really like to learn about the use-case for you. RhodeCode is designed to be behind firewall, so we never actually planned a cloud version.

We have a private demo containers which are hosted version of RhodeCode with your own custom domain.

I don't agree with GH, BB and GitLab policies (censorship). Also I don't like Git. I would like to have a free 5 user cloud code hosting with hg support. 5+ user accounts could be paid.

Sorry for late answer.

Do you value the social aspect ? Could a hosting container with your own domain be sufficient ?

This would be hosting+backup, on your own https domain work ?

I just need to host in cloud my proprietary source code. Be sure it has backup & security. It could be cloud.rhodecode.com. Any other aspects (e.g. social) are not important for me. I need 5-10 users for free, when my enterprise is profitable I would pay for sure.

Other needed features (mentioned on issues.rhodecode.com) are: wiki, bugtracker (with gantt/wbs). Also I would like to have Redmine instance together with Rhodecode cloud :-)
