Description

When I'm not logged in and attempt to comment on a line in a commit from the commit page, where the comment field would be replaced by "You need to be logged in to comment. Login now". When I click the "Login now" link, I am directed to a 404 which says "No such commit exists for this repository".

I should be directed to the login page, with a redirect to the line I wanted to comment on after I log in.

"Login now" is producing this url:

{{rum(52, Martin Bornhold)}} says:

Look like trying to generate the url with pylons url instead of using pyramids request.route_pathoder request.route_url. Only a guess

#2 - 30.06.2016 17:26 - Daniel D

I came across same problems while doing integrations, my solution was to make both url() and request.route_url use the same function which would try both pyramid/pylons for the route:

pylons_router = URLGenerator(config['routes.map'], environ)
pyramid_router = request.route_url
def pyramid_pylons_url_for(*args, kw):
    try:
        return pyramid_router(*args, kw)
    except (KeyError, TypeError):
        return pylons_router(*args, kw)

pylons.url._push_object(pyramid_pylons_url_for) request.route_url = pyramid_pylons_url_for
